completed, Clark said. The on-campus coverage will create an audience of 3,000.

Programs will be directed to the students with emphasis on popular music, sports and news. Present plans call for the station to operate six nights a week from 6 p.m.-12 p.m.

Students to Benefit

Clark said he was very grateful that the regents had approved the laboratory project so that students can engage in programing on a commercial basis.

Intial cost of the station will be $3,000. The Interfraternity council has loaned $1,000 at 3 percent interest. The student senate now has on its agenda a request for the loan of the remaining $2,000.

Arrangments are to be made for remote broadcast from the home of President Cross. This will enable the president to reach a large number of students with announcements that cannot be delayed, Clark said.

Contrary to the conventional type transmitter, the new station will be wired directly into the house that is to receive the broadcast, and a small oscilator inside the house will do the transmitting.

Radio station KUVY, student managed and operated, will soon be broadcasting from the campus.

The board of regents approved the wired wireless radio station at its meeting Monday.

Representatives of several bond buying firms conferred with the board about the sale of bonds for the $2,500,000 university's coed dormitory. However, no decision was reached and negotiations are continuing.

The board also discussed an extension of the Union building but no action was taken.

Staff members for the campus station will be announced in a few days, Donald F. Clark, faculty manager of the proposed station, said Monday night.

"We hope to be in operation within the next few months, depending on the length of time it takes to make the installations," Clark said.

Wide Coverage Sought

Tentative plans call for a series of installations. The first stop will be on campus coverage which will include Sooner City, Woodrow Wilson dormitories, Niemann apartments, Residence halls, Sooner Courts, Jefferson hall and the Infirmary.

After the station has been organized and preliminary problems solved, the facilities will be extended to dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses around the campus. Eventually ,the station hopes to be connected with the living quarters on the north and south campuses.

A potential listening audience of about 8,000 is expected when the series of installations have been

'Bird' Finals To Lure Girls

Now listen, girls. If you have a yen for personal fame and want a few million people all over the world to see you in the movies, the time for action is now.

All you've got to do is get nominated for the rooster finals. You will represent OU at the finale of the rooster contest to be held December 8 in Oklahoma City in conjunction with the Oklahoma state poultry show.

The rooster contest, tabbed international by the Warner-Pathe movie producers, is to select a replacement for the old decrepid cock that crows at the theater audience from the Pathe newsreel
